DEMOCRACY

Gets Together at Grand Old Time Love Feast in Lexington.

Unlily Is the Watchword That Protects the Camp From Enemies.

Going Back to Original Lines Upon Which Party Was Founded.

PEOPLE TO ELECT CHAIRMEN

As the Kentucky Irish American goes to press the Kentucky State Democratic convention is in full blast at Lexington. Thus far everything has been harmonious, and unless all signs fail the assembly will close with the Kentucky Democracy more united and in better shape to fight the common enemy than at any time in sixteen years. Beckham and anti-Beckham men, the followers of Blackburn and McCreary, the supporters of Wat Harlan and of Simon Bolivar Binegar, the staunch friends of every leader from the Cumberland mountains to Desha creek are all together at an old-fashioned Democratic love feast.

The old factional leaders in Louisville got together first. They showed a good example to the rest of the State, and the leaders from the other Congressional districts were not slow to see the advantages. "United we stand, divided we fall" is the motto of Kentucky and has been since her admission to the Union. Now it is the motto of Kentucky Democracy.

When Attorney Aaron Kohn, Col. William B. Haldeman and Col. John H. Whitten agreed to sink their personal grievances and clasp hands for party over their adherents followed suit. What was the result? Primary conventions in each of the Legislative districts of this city and county last Saturday and a fair and untrammeled expression of opinion from all. There was no friction, no dissension, no note. If the voters disagreed on a question of policy the matter was quickly settled in the good old Democratic way of abiding by the will of the majority. That is the only way to win elections.

The Democratic primary of June 6 and the Republican primaries of April 25 offer a strong contrast. The Democrats had harmony, freedom and fairness; the Republicans had discord, coercion, despotism. Those who were despoiled of their vote in the April primaries are not anxious to boost the game of the bosses who led the fight for Taft and graft. Many Republicans and Fusionists will either vote the Democratic ticket this fall or else remain away from the polls.

As early as Monday the Bluegrass capital began to take on convention airs and by Wednesday night every hotel and boarding house in the city was filled, and a number of the delegates were quartered in college dormitories. But there were comparatively few sleepers at Lexington Wednesday night. All were on the tip-toe of expectancy until, at 2 o'clock Thursday morning, former Gov. J. C. W. Beckham announced that he had withdrawn from the race for temporary Chairman of the convention. That cleared the atmosphere and the get-together business was on in earnest.

The alert leaders had no difficulty then in mapping out a programme. Congressman A. Owsley Stanley, of the Second district, for temporary Chairman; Henry Hewitt, of Mt. Sterling, for Chairman of the State Central and Executive Committees; Rufus Van Sant, of Ashland, and Abner Kien, of Russellville, members from the State-at-large of those committees, and six instead of four delegates from the State-at-large to the national convention at Denver. Each of the six will be entitled to two-thirds of a vote. The big six selected by the leaders are former Senator McCreary, former Gov. Beckham, Col. William B. Haldeman, of Louisville; Senator Payne, of Congressman Olie James and J. C. Mayo.

The platform is to be broad enough for any Democrat to stand upon. It denounces monopolies and centralization of power and indorses the candidacy of William Jennings Bryan for President of the United States. The platform also provides for a much needed change in the party rules in this State—that is the election of precinct committeemen in cities by direct vote of the people instead of their appointment by District Chairmen. In other words, it is going back to the plain old Democratic doctrine that the will of the majority must rule.

BISHOP SPALDING RESTS.

The Right Rev. John Lancaster Spalding, Bishop of Peoria, is visiting his sisters, Miss Kate Spalding and Mrs. Annie E. Putnam, near Lebanon, in Marion county. The Bishop's health is much improved, to the great delight of his many friends in Kentucky.

WILL VISIT QUEBEC.

The people of Quebec are preparing to celebrate the three hundredth anniversary of the founding of that city, and George Wolfe, a kinsman of Gen. Wolfe, the hero of the famous battle of Quebec, will be one of the guests of honor. Mr. Wolfe owns a large estate in the County Kildare, Ireland, and is a lineal descendant of Theobald Wolfe, for whom Theobald Wolfe, Tone was named. He is also the nearest living relative of Arthur Wolfe, who was Lord Kildare and Lord Chief Justice of Ireland made the famous protest in Wolfe Tone's case against the overriding of the decisions of civil courts by arbitrary military tribunals in 1803. Mr. Wolfe is worthy of his ancestral line and is in sympathy with home rule ideas.

TRINITY SUNDAY.

Great Mystery of Triune God Will Be Celebrated Tomorrow.

Since the year 1334 A. D. the entire Catholic church has observed the feast of Trinity Sunday one week after Pentecost. Previous to that time the feast had been observed in various countries at divers times, but in the year Pope John XXII. ordered its general observance at one particular time.

The mystery of the Holy Trinity consists in this, that God, being individually and numerically one, exists in three persons, or in other words that the divine essence, which is one and the same in the strictest and most absolute sense, exists in three persons really distinct from each other, and yet each really identical with the same divine essence. The Father is unbegotten, the Son begotten, and the Holy Ghost proceeds from the Father and Son. Each person is really distinct from the other, each is the true eternal God, and yet there is only one God.

It is to honor each of these three persons of the triune God that the church has set aside one Sunday in each year, and to call more particular attention to the feast it is made the last day for Catholics to comply with the injunction to receive the sacraments of penance and the Holy Eucharist during Easter-tide. There are, consequently, few Catholics who wait until such a late day to comply with their annual obligatory duties, but as there are always a few who overlook the matter it is not amiss to remind them that tomorrow will be Trinity Sunday.

QUITE BUSY

Are Roman Correspondents of the American Press.

American correspondents in Rome are very busy just now making Cardinals for Pope Pius X., although the consistory that was to have been held this month has been postponed until the close of the year, and enables this week brought the announcement that Monsignor Dionisio Falconio, Papal Delegate to the United States, was sure to get the red hat in the next consistory. The information is so strong, it is true, because Monsignor Falconio has had a number of delicate questions to handle and has acquitted himself admirably. Both Monsignors Santoli and Martelli were made Cardinals after having served as Papal Delegates in Washington, and it is more than likely that Monsignor Falconio will get his reward when the time comes.

It is said that His Holiness has practically decided to send Monsignor Pellegrino Santoli, Archbishop of Ancona, as successor to Monsignor Falconio. He is a member of the Servite order and speaks English fluently. Before being made Bishop of Ancona he was General of the Servites and visited the houses of his order in the United States.

BOSTON WAITS.

Catholic Federation Will Hold Convention at the Hub.

Boston is preparing to entertain the delegates to the seventh national convention of the American Federation of Catholic Societies on August 2 to 9. His Grace Archbishop O'Connell heads the committee in charge of the arrangements. Nearly every Catholic society in the archdiocese has become affiliated with the Federation, so that the visiting delegates will be greeted by a solidly federated set of Catholics throughout the city.

The convention will meet on Sunday, August 9, and Archbishop O'Connell will preach the sermon in the Boston Cathedral. The business sessions will be held in Symphony Hall. There will be mass meetings on Sunday and Tuesday nights, and on each night the principal speakers will be Archbishop O'Connell and Bishop McLaughlin. The visitors will be given many side trips and shown every attention while the convention is in progress.

CENTENARIANS.

Several remarkable instances of longevity have been recorded in the Irish newspapers of late. Of vigorous old age, Thomas Kelly, of Ballygavely, County Tyrone, is a splendid example. Although he is over 107, with the assistance of his seventy-year-old son he tills a mountain farm of seventy-four acres. Last autumn he walked five miles to visit a neighbor, a woman who is two years his junior, and at the last election he walked eight miles to record his vote.

THE SHERIDANS.

Two Sheridans are on the roll of the army of the United States—Michael V. Sheridan, a brother of Gen. Philip H. Sheridan, of illustrious memory, and Philip Henry Sheridan, Jr. The former is on the retired list as a Brigadier General. "Little Phil's" son and namesake is a Lieutenant of the Fifth cavalry.

STILLED

For Eternity Is the Voice and Pen of Col. John F. Finerty.

Veteran Journalist and Publican Has Had a Great Career.

Told Story on Himself When He Served as a Club Reporter.

HAD FINE ORATORICAL ABILITY

It was with great regret that the Irish-Americans of Louisville learned of the death of Col. John F. Finerty, editor of the Irish Citizen, which occurred Wednesday at his home in Chicago. He was sixty-two years of age, and is survived by a wife and two children, John F. Finerty, Jr., a lawyer, and Miss Vera, a senior in the Chicago University. For the past six months Col. Finerty had been in failing health, and for some time past little hope was entertained for his recovery. Col. Finerty had been one of the most aggressive Irish-American writers of the last twenty-five years. He had been prominently identified with both Irish and American politics, and long before he entered the field of Irish-American journalism was recognized as a writer of forceful English. He had, as an American journalist, a graphic style peculiarly his own.

Col. Finerty was born in Ireland and received his education there. When quite a youth he came to America. In the early seventies he was a reporter on Chicago newspapers. His energy and ability won him promotion and added impetus to his natural ambition. In the war against the Indians in '74-'75 Finerty was the correspondent of the old Chicago Times. He not only marched with the soldiers, but he ate, drank, slept and fought with them. He was recognized in journalistic circles as the ablest of the newspaper correspondents then with the United States army in the West.

Later he entered politics and was elected to Congress from Chicago. He was active in Irish and Catholic circles and was regarded as a political power. He is more than six feet tall, broad shouldered and has a rich, mellow, musical brogue. Had he remained in Congress until the present time he would have divided the oratorical honors of the whole United States with Hon. Burke Cockran, of New York. His first employer in Chicago journalism was Wilbur F. Storey, a pioneer journalist of the West.

"Mr. Storey," said Mr. Finerty, in discussing old times with a party of friends recently, "was a very stern man and quick-tempered. Everybody stood in awe of him around the office and a summons to the old man's den generally meant a bounce or serious trouble for the unfortunate recipient. One of Mr. Storey's peculiarities was never to take a man back who had said the nerve to resign from the Times. He would hire a man in a rage and hire him again the next day, but let a man once resign and that ended him so far as getting work on that paper was concerned; that was the one unpardonable sin in the old man's eyes."

"I once had the honor of being 'fired' by Mr. Storey and re-engaged inside of five minutes. This is how it happened: One Saturday night as I was leaving the office the city editor called me to his desk and gave me a Sunday night assignment to report the sermon of a distinguished New York preacher who was in Chicago on a visit. Sunday was my day off, but of course we were all subject to extra calls like this one, although I didn't relish it a bit I can tell you. The next afternoon some friends dropped around to my room and presented a small set of cards. I was startled. I became so interested in the game that I forgot all about my assignment until nearly 9 o'clock. I hastened around to the church only to find the doors closed. I did not know where the visiting minister was stopping so I called on Mr. Storey, the city editor, and wrote a report of the sermon. I had known of the divine as a strong Catholic, so in the sermon I wrote for him I lambasted the Protestants vigorously.

"The next morning I discovered from the other papers to my horror that my man had changed his religion and become a Protestant, so of course my sermon did not hit the mark. I had a premonition of trouble on my way down to the office and sure enough I had hardly gotten inside the door when the city editor said to me with a diabolical grin, 'John, the old man has just sent out for you. He wants to see you at once.' I made my way to the old man's sanctum with fear and trembling. When I opened the door I saw a clerical-looking gentleman sitting near Mr. Storey's desk and I realized that my goose was cooked. 'Finerty,' said Mr. Storey in his severest tone, 'did you write the report of the sermon that appears in the Times this morning?'

"I had to plead guilty and I frankly told him just what happened. 'I am very sorry, sir,' I said, and bowing to the minister, 'I also beg his reverence's pardon. I was not aware that he had changed his religion.' "That will do, sir," said the old man curtly. "You are discharged." At that the minister began to intercede for me. He hoped Mr. Storey would not do anything so harsh as that. He had not thought of anything so drastic. It was but a small matter anyway.

Mr. Storey was adamant. No, he could not think of keeping a reporter on the Times who would do such a thing; so the preacher departed feeling quite badly over getting a poor unfortunate out of his job. He had hardly gotten out of the building, however, before Mr. Storey sent for the city editor. "I discharged Mr. Finerty a few minutes ago," he said, "but you are authorized to reengage him. Tell him not to let it occur again."

RISING VOTE

From Division 4 For the County Board's Present.

Rain interfered somewhat with the meeting of Division 4, A. O. H., last Monday night, but still the attendance was very fair. President John H. Hennessy presided, and in the absence of Frank P. Burke, William P. McDonough acted as Secretary. Michael Collins was obligated. John Flynn was reported as still on the sick list, and John Callahan was reported recovered. An invitation to attend the picnic to be given by the Ladies' Auxiliary at White City on Monday, June 22, was received and accepted.

Division 3 also forwarded an invitation to attend its moonlight excursion on the Illawatha next Monday night. Members of Division 4 can purchase tickets from John J. Barry, of the Kentucky Irish American. Messrs. William P. McDonough, Stephen J. McElliott and John Fitzgibbon were appointed to represent Division 4 in making further arrangements for the picnic to be given at White City on July 4 under the auspices of the County Board. County President John A. Murphy appealed to the members to give their hearty support to this enterprise, because whatever funds accrue will be used in defraying the expenses of entertaining the visiting delegates to the State convention, which will assemble in Louisville on the second Tuesday in September.

Officer Pat Kenney, who had not attended a meeting for quite a while, was given a warm welcome and made a few remarks in response. Dr. Charles Edelen also made a brief address. Before the meeting adjourned the members tendered the County Board a rising vote of thanks for the parlor organ so generously donated. During the evening several legal points developed. All were fully discussed and referred to a special committee of three for final recommendations.

HONORS FOR LOUISVILLE GILL.

The commencement exercises at the Ursuline Convent at St. Martin's, Brown county, Ohio, passed off with brilliant success on the afternoon of Tuesday, June 9, presided over in his usual impressive style by Most Rev. Archbishop Moeller, and attended by a large concourse of invited guests. The five students were Miss Katherine Krebs, of Lake Charles, La.; Miss Amelia Brutsche, of Newport, Ky.; Miss Margaret Love, of Fayetteville, Ohio; Miss Ethel Closterman and Miss Lucille Carroll, of Cincinnati. Special honors in music were conferred on Miss Genevieve Hackett, daughter of Mr. James L. Hackett, of Louisville, Ky. Brown County Convent is affiliated with the Ohio State University, and this year's scholastic work as represented in the closing exercises showed a high standard of excellence in that old and venerated institution. Mrs. Milton Mandeville and Messrs. Lawrence and Bernard Hackett, of Louisville, were present at the closing exercises.

IRISH FORESTS DENUDE.

An investigation is being made into the timber resources of Ireland. Irish hillsides were once well wooded, but Ireland is now the poorest country in Europe. Its forests were cut down and the land is now a barren timber wasteland, and only now is the country realizing the extent of the evil. There are yet many industries in Ireland connected with woodwork, but as the supply of raw material is disappearing the manufacturing industry is being driven out of business or adopt the expensive method of buying foreign material. Parliamentary subsidy for reforesting the country is under consideration and it is hoped that some speedy and practical help will be given.

ACHIEVED SUCCESS.

The military euche and dance, given under the auspices of the two companies of the Uniform Rank, C. K. of A., at Phoenix Hill Park Tuesday night, was a great success. Members of every branch of the order in and around the Falls cities helped to swell the crowd. While those who cared for euche were engaged on the esplanade the younger element enjoyed the dance in the large hall. So thoroughly were both sets enjoying themselves that it was decided to abandon the proposed drill, although the members of both companies were present in full uniform. Quite a number of handsome prizes were distributed at the close of the euche.

FAIRLEY—LANGDON.

The elite of Paducah attended the Church of St. Francis de Sales in that city Wednesday to witness the ceremony that made Miss Endora Fairley Mrs. James C. Langdon. The Rev. Father Joseph performed the ceremony. After a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride's parents Mr. and Mrs. Langdon left for a honeymoon trip to Michigan. They will make their home in St. Louis. The bride is the daughter of Capt. Ed. Fairley, Kentucky's State Treasurer, and has been much admired in Kentucky social circles.

EXPLORERS.

The Early Irish Sailors Had Large Vessels of Their Own.

Some Facts From History Show That They Made Trips Abroad.

St. Brendan Visited the Land of Flowers and Intense Heat.

HE SAW FRIGHTFUL VOLCANOES

Many of our latter day historians leave one under the impression that Ireland had no ships of any size previous to the Norman invasion, but if one goes a little deeper into the wells of Irish history he will find that the contrary is true. A writer in the Southern Cross, an Irish Catholic journal published in the Argentine Confederation, South America, quoting an old Irish record, says: "The Milesians came to Ireland in thirty ships with fifty soldiers in each, besides their wives and attendants. Laidirath, who was monarch of Ireland eighteen years, from A. M. 2645 to A. M. 2666, was surnamed Loingsceach, that 'of the ships,' because he caused to be built many great ships. King Clonmahan invaded Gaul A. M. 329, as did also his successor, Nial of the nine hostages, and Dathi, who was killed by lightning in Helvelth; surely these Kings with their armies did not walk, neither did they go in caravans. We also read of an inviolable engagement in Dundalk harbor A. D. 85 between the Irish and Danes. The old sagas tell us of expeditions fitted out to explore the Western ocean. Most of the explorers never returned. It is now well known that the Irish discovered Iceland and the Faroe Islands at least a century before the Danes. The Landnamabok which gives the history and settlements of the early inhabitants of Iceland—one would almost imagine it was Ireland—makes frequent mention of the names of Kormak, Njal (Niall), Kjarval (Carroll), Melinn, etc., etc. The five names of Irish geographers, who wrote A. D. 845, says: 'It is now about thirty years since I was told by some Irish ecclesiastics, who had dwelt in Iceland from February to August, that the sun scarcely ever sets there in the night. The five names of Irish geographers, who wrote A. D. 845, says: 'It is now about thirty years since I was told by some Irish ecclesiastics, who had dwelt in Iceland from February to August, that the sun scarcely ever sets there in the night. Light enough to do one's ordinary business.' And in speaking of the Faroe Islands Dicuill says: 'A certain trustworth monk told me that he reached one of them by sailing for two summer days in one night. These islands for almost a hundred years there dwell hermits who sailed from our own Ireland, but now they are once more deserted, as they were in the beginning on account of the ravages of the Norse pirates.' We are told that St. Brendan prepared 'three vessels with thirty men in each, some clerics, some laymen and with these he sailed to seek the 'Western Land' over the wave-voice of the strong-manned sea, and over the storm of the green-sided waves, where they beheld abundance of the might sea whales, and they found beautiful, marvelous islands. After some time Brendan returned home where his people brought him treasures and gifts as if they were giving them to God."

Brendan's foster mother, St. Ita, now advised him to find out more about those marvelous islands and counselled him to sail in a wooden ship, so Brendan built himself a great, marvelous vessel, distinguished and huge. He first sailed to Aran to consort with St. Edna, but after a time he heaved anchor and sailed once more into the West. He passed icebergs, visited islands on which were talking birds (parrots), arrived in a warm climate off islands from which floated a delicious perfume of flowers, sailed in a very deep sea swimming at a very great depth, saw frightful volcanoes, visited islands where white people lived who spoke Gaelic, and in fine reached a great land with a mighty river flowing to the west.

The land is described as radiant, famous, lovely; a land odorous, flower-smooth, unmarred. The great ocean tempted the adventurous spirit of the Gael, and when they discovered Iceland and the Faroes they certainly did not stop there. St. Brendan saw frightful volcanoes and a warm climate, and he sailed to Mount Pelee in Martinique or some other volcano in the West Indies. He visited islands "where a white people who spoke the Gaelic language," showing that previous navigators had been there before him. The Irish sagas "Men in which he carried westward by wind and the equatorial current from more southerly latitudes." Of course they might. It is strange to note that the "Western Land" was called Ily Brazil, called perhaps after the King of Brazil, who in very remote ages went to discover the Western land, but never returned. Did the present Brazil take its name from that tradition?

Considering that Fergil, who became Archbishop of Salzburg and died in 785, taught the shrewdness of the earth and the doctrine of the antipodes—a truth which, says Dr. Hyde, seems to have been familiar to the Irish had made no attempt to discover the land in the Golden West? Perhaps when more of the old manuscripts in the Royal Academy are translated we may learn something further of those early Irish explorers.

FOUND SISTER.

One Irish Boy Realizes the Benefits of Splendid Society.

William Gurvey, an immigrant Irish boy, will not soon forget the ministrations of the St. Vincent de Paul Society in New York. William is sixteen years old, and three weeks ago left his home in Ballycooney, County Roscommon, Ireland, to join his sister, Miss Sadie Gurvey, who had come to America some years previously. He went to the address she had given in Philadelphia, only to find that she had gone to Brooklyn, N. Y. Kind-hearted people gave William enough money to reach New York, but in all that vast city no one seemed to know Sadie Gurvey.

He wandered across the Williamsburg bridge to Brooklyn. There a policeman found the disconsolate youth in tears. A Magistrate sent the boy to the officers of the St. Vincent de Paul Society. Several days elapsed but there seemed to be no trace of Sadie. Last Friday he set out with Father Blake. They boarded a car and had proceeded only a few blocks when the boy with a cry of joy rushed forward and threw himself into the arms of his sister. The girl hugged her brother hysterically and both wept. In fact there were few dry eyes in the street car. Both sister and brother were profuse in their thanks to Father Blake and to the St. Vincent de Paul Society for their care of William.

COOL BREEZES

Will Be One of Pleasant Features of Moonlight Excursion.

Those who like to enjoy cool breezes these leafy nights in June will find something to their liking in the moonlight excursion to be given by Division 3, A. O. H., next Monday night. The steamer Illawatha has been chartered for the evening and will leave the foot of Fourth street at 8 o'clock sharp. En route up the river the boat will stop at the Jeffersonville wharf to take the friends of the order from that city. The Illawatha will have an excellent union orchestra aboard and will proceed up the river for some distance, but will return in time to land all its passengers at the foot of Fourth street in Louisville about 11 o'clock. A abundance of refreshments will be aboard the boat, and the occasion promises to be an enjoyable one for all concerned. The idea of Division 3's members is not to make money, but to promote a good feeling among members and friends of the order in general, and to thus end the ill feeling which has been placed on sale for the small sum of twenty-five cents.

The committee in charge of the arrangements is made up of State President George J. Butler, John Riley and John Kurman. They have left nothing undone to make the excursion enjoyable in every particular.

POSTPONED.

Mackin Council Delays Its Invitation For Several Months.

Mackin Council had a splendid attendance Tuesday night because it had been scheduled for an energetic by far, and I could not stand that sort of thing as a steady regimen. And I have no advice for the great American people, either, I would not venture to preach to a people who are better than myself. But I do want to say in departing from this wonderful land that the prosperity I have witnessed here and the hospitality have made a lasting impression on me."

Cardinal Logue had not time to see a great deal of the United States, but he has had a kindly welcome wherever he went and had a kind word for all who welcomed him. He bears home a lasting impression of his visit to the United States, and will be busy for a long time telling his own people of the piety and fervor of the Irish Catholics in America. All America joined in wishing him a safe journey home.

MAJOR BLOEMER'S LUCK.

All that section of Louisville known as California sat up and took notice Tuesday afternoon when it became known that Major H. J. Bloemer was the father of twin babies, a boy and a girl. The Major thanks Dr. Paul Schwaubklaus for his interest in the mother and little ones, who are all doing nicely. The fond papa is a member of the Army, treading the boards as a tragedian in "The Shadows of the Rockies," and commanding a battalion of the Knights of St. John, believes he is able to walk with any twins that were ever born. It is a safe bet that 1618 Kentucky street will be decorated and will be the scene of fireworks display on or before July 4, when the babies can see them.

HOMeward

Bound Aboard the Campana Is the Primate of All Ireland.

Strange Scene at Pier When Cardinal Logue Was Embarking.

Deeply Impressed With Country and Its Individual Citizens.

ACCOMPANIED DOWN THE BAY

The steamer Glen, carrying several hundred Irish Americans, escorted the big Cunard liner Campana down the bay last Saturday when Cardinal Michael Logue sailed for home after a visit of six weeks in America. The Cardinal, his private secretary, Father Michael Quinn, and Bishop Brown, of Cloyne, were taken to the pier in an automobile. As soon as the Campana arrived several hundred Catholics surrounded the party and begged for a last blessing from the Irish Primate. The people were formed in line and passed before the aged dignitary of the church and each knelt and kissed his episcopal ring. Among those in line was Justice McKenna, of the United States Supreme Court, and his daughter, Mrs. Edna McKenna. Mrs. Duffield and her husband are going for a tour of Europe and sailed on the vessel with Cardinal Logue. Before the vessel backed into the stream Cardinal Logue had a few words to say to all Americans:

"I do not believe, with some others," he said, "that the world as a whole is retrogressing, but I do believe it is getting better. This does not mean that the world is becoming more civilized, but the enlightened world, and means that Christianity is progressing and not falling into forgetfulness. Of course, there are countries where progress with the Christian faith is slow, and there are others where the Catholic church is not advancing as I might wish. There are a few nominal Catholics in France, but they do not count for much. In speaking of the progress of the church as a whole body."

"I have been deeply impressed with this wonderful country and its individual citizens. Particularly was I impressed with the vigor of our President, whom I had the pleasure of meeting in Washington. There is one other thing in which the United States is fortunate, and that is in much of its immigration. From Ireland you are drawing the bone and sinew of the land, and those are the men who make good citizens, worthy of any country. They are the men who uphold and do not tear down, and this country is lucky in getting that sort of material to develop its vast resources."

"Everywhere I have looked while here has been beautiful. The Military Academy at West Point is one of the most lovely spots on earth, and the Hudson river seems to be unsurpassable in its majestic beauty. Our own Shannon is a fine stream, but it can not compare with the Hudson."

"I wish I might say I can come back some day, but I am an old man, and you are too young for me. I am energetic by far, and I could not stand that sort of thing as a steady regimen. And I have no advice for the great American people, either, I would not venture to preach to a people who are better than myself. But I do want to say in departing from this wonderful land that the prosperity I have witnessed here and the hospitality have made a lasting impression on me."

LANDS NICE PLACE.

Robert Emmet Dundon, until a short time ago one of the most versatile writers on the Times editorial staff, has relinquished that position to assume the management of the publicity department of the National Model License League. He will maintain his suite of offices in the Commercial Building. Mr. Dundon is popular with all classes and will prove to be a capable agent in his new employment.

WHY IS THIS ALLOWED?

Since when has Shawnee Park been turned over to the exclusive use of the colored population? It is one of the most beautiful of Louisville's chain of parks and directly overlooks the Ohio river. It is convenient to several lines of street cars and for years has been a boon to mothers who wanted to give their sick babies an airing or tired children an outing. All is changed this year. White people at Shawnee Park have no show at all. Negroes take possession of the benches and swings, and if a white child or mother dare sit on a bench or enter a swing they are insulted. Appeals to the park policemen have brought no relief. This can be vouched for by the best people in Louisville. Park Commissioners should see that the negroes keep their place instead of controlling any of the parks.

HITS THE NAIL.

In handling the liquor question, and just now everybody in America seems bent on handling it, George Harvey, editor of Harper's Weekly, seems to have hit the nail on the head. He says in part:

"The rum question is important, but not nearly so vital as many people think. The true way to settle it is not to make the rum bad, or even excessively scarce, but to make the man good. That is the Christian way, and the only way that is permanently satisfactory. That was the method pursued by St. Patrick and Father Matthew in driving the snakes out of Ireland, and it can not be beaten. Legislation, if wise, can do something, however, and should be made to do what it can."

Editor Harvey also took a fall out of the Methodists very recently. At the recent General Conference of the Methodists Bishop Neely charged the Catholic church with mingling in politics. He said its influence was felt in State and municipal governments and at Washington. In commenting upon Bishop Neely's utterances Editor Harvey says:

"No doubt, no doubt, but it would not be hard to get testimonials that the influence of Bishop Neely's church is also felt at Washington. Who fights the army estimate? Who makes Congressmen afraid to come home without having driven beer out of the Soldiers' homes? Who took notice when Mr. Fairbanks drank the cocktail? The Methodist church is very influential in our politics. There are six and one half millions Methodists in the country, over five million Baptists, and eleven or twelve million Roman Catholics. All three of these large churches are bound to be influential, and the Methodists certainly are. Just what distinction Bishop Neely would make between Methodist political activity and Catholic activity we don't know. It is conceivable that in some matters the two influences supplement one another to the profit of the community, and that in other matters they temper one another, also to the profit of the community."

CHURCH AND STATE AID.

Are the anti-clerical leaders in France accomplishing what they set out to do? Are they killing the Catholic church in that land, for centuries known as the "eldest daughter of the church"? It would seem not. The priests and members of the hierarchy of France seem to have profited by the experience of their brethren in the United States. The church in this country gets no aid from the Government and yet its growth has been more rapid than in any other country in the world. It is frequently charged by ministers of dissolving creeds that the material success of the Catholic church was brought about through Government aid. That can certainly have no foundation in fact as far as the United States is concerned. It is also contended by some that the Catholic church unnecessarily burdens its members with the construction of great churches and institutions. But the United States census reports show that there are fewer Catholic churches in this country in proportion to the Catholic population than there are of any other denomination, and that there are more Catholic charitable institutions in proportion. All of this is done without Government or State aid. It is done by voluntary contribution and where occasionally a wealthy Catholic will give largely to the erection of a church or a hospital or orphan asylum, but the vast sum comes from the nickels and dimes of working girls and working men, they give it voluntarily. They know they are giving in a good cause, that they are laying up treasures in heaven. They realize that the Catholic church builds for the future. It has no fear that the churches she builds will not continue to increase their membership. One nationality may succeed another in a parish, or families may remove, but the parish remains though it may be necessary occasionally to remove the site to another part of the parish. If the French clergy will stick to the American plan they will triumph, even though they have been despoiled by the French Government.

IRISH UNIVERSITY BILL.

The Irish University bill as it stands is by no means what the people of Ireland want, but the consensus of opinion seems to be that half a loaf is better than no bread. If the worst comes to the worst, it will doubtless be accepted, and another hope long deferred will be deferred again. The editor of the Dundalk Democrat, who is thoroughly familiar with the situation, declares:

"There is no promise of a grant adequate to the needs of a real Irish university. The great blot on the measure, the want of a residential college for students, seems very likely to be removed. The idea of the framers of the bill is to let the students dwell as scattered units in the city of Dublin, exposed to the dangers of Dublin life, to work mischief in the case of country-bred youths let loose in the city with no substitute for parental control. Under existing circumstances a clever young man may take his degree by private study, either at home or in some of the excellent Irish Catholic colleges, such as St. Mary's of Dundalk or the seminary at Monaghan. Under Mr. Birrell's bill that opportunity is apparently to be taken from him. As the bill stands it is a doubtful benefit, though whether it should be accepted as a half measure or an installment is a matter for consideration. We do not like half measures, if for no other reason than the difficulty of turning them into whole ones."

Bryan and Taft will be the respective standard-bearers for the Democratic and Republican parties in November. Both are able and clean men, although their views on many questions of public policy are widely at variance. No doubt each will be nominated on the first ballot, perhaps by acclamation. The main interest in the two conventions now centers upon the candidates for second place.

Louisville residents have no occasion to seek relief from a sultry climate this year. The days have been just warm enough and no night has been hot enough to do without covers. Kentucky's metropolis is booming up as an ideal health resort, and one can find the climate of the mountains and seashore combined as well as lots of amusement. Why not advertise the city as an ideal summer resort?

Tomorrow will be Trinity Sunday, and consequently the final day for Catholics who have not hitherto availed themselves of the privilege to make their Easter duties. Those who have been negligent in this regard ought to seek the tribunal of confession this afternoon or evening.

ANNOUNCES CANDIDACY.

Hon. Herman D. Newcomb announces his candidacy for the Democratic nomination for Congress from this district in another column. As a lawyer, a citizen and a legislator Mr. Newcomb has proven himself worthy of every trust the voters of Louisville can repose in him. If he is nominated he has a following that will elect him. But he is a Democrat, and will yield to the will of the majority in case the voters choose another candidate. In the event of his election Robert T. Burke, a well known young attorney, and President of Mackin Council, will accompany Mr. Newcomb to Washington, D. C., as his private secretary.

LAWN FETE.

The Rev. Father Francis Felten, pastor of St. Augustine's church, Fourteenth and Broadway, has arranged to give a lawn fete and ice cream social on the church grounds on the evenings of Monday and Tuesday, July 13 and 14. Tickets of admission will be only fifteen cents, and all who attend are assured some real enjoyment.

CLOSE OF YEAR.

Loretto Academy had its ninety-sixth annual commencement exercises Thursday, and quite a number of Louisville people were on hand to witness the various numbers. Miss Mary Ryan, of Russellville, President of the Alumnae Society, presided over a very largely attended meeting of that body.

Miss Lorena Herdt, who will become Mrs. Fred Brauner on June 24. The wedding will be solemnized at St. Vincent de Paul's church at 3 o'clock in the afternoon. Miss Mary Holland will be the bridesmaid and Jacob Brauner, a brother of the groom, will be the best man. Miss Herdt is the daughter of John Herdt and is one of the most popular young ladies in the East End. Mr. Brauner holds a responsible position with W. B. Belknap & Company.

A number of West End young folks gave a private picnic at Blackston Mill, Ind., last Sunday. All spent an enjoyable day feasting, fishing and boating. In the party were Misses Thillie and Mary Ellen Cuffiff, Anna Doyle, Nellie Earley, Catherine Fallahay, Anna Grimes, Evelyn Moeller, Agnes Nevils, Irene and Mary Nicollin, Irene Pfeiffer and Messrs. Miss Elsie M. Stiebling and Theodore Kraft were united in marriage at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. L. G. Stiebling, 2028 West Main street, Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock. It was strictly a home wedding, and after a reception of a few friends Mr. and Mrs. Kraft left for a visit to Niagara Falls and other points of interest in the East. The bride is very prominent in West End circles, and was stenographer for M. Sabel & Sons prior to her marriage. Mr. Kraft is a son of Henry A. Kraft, the well known butcher. Both young people have the best wishes of many friends for their future happiness.

Miss Lizzie Mallon and Daniel J. Stiglitz will be united in matrimony at St. John's rectory on the evening of Thursday, June 25, the Rev. Father Daniel Gallagher officiating. The attending ushers will be James Mallon, a brother of the bride, and Louis Stiglitz, a nephew of the groom. The wedding will be a very quiet one. Mr. and Mrs. Stiglitz will reside with the groom's parents at Sixteenth and Madison streets. The bride is one of the most charming young ladies in the East End and for some time past has been manager for Henry Fuchs, the florist in the Hopkins Theater building. The fortunate bridegroom is in the iron foundry business on Ninth street.

One of the prettiest of the June weddings was that which made Miss Lillian Elizabeth Hoertz Mrs. Charles Cruise. It was solemnized at St. Mary Magdalene's church Wednesday morning at 7:30 o'clock. The Rev. Father William Grawald performed the ceremony and later celebrated the nuptial mass. Newman Hoertz, a brother of the bride, and Otto A. Rothert were the attendants. The bride is the daughter of Jacob Hoertz, the well known contractor, and is noted for her many graces. Mr. Cruise is editor of the Kentucky Elk and is to be congratulated on winning such a charming girl. They will visit New York, Washington and other Eastern points before beginning housekeeping in this city.

One of the pleasant events of the week was a reception tendered John Burns at his home, in Waverly Court, by a number of his friends. The parlors were tastefully decorated with potted plants and palms. The color scheme for the table was a combination of pink and green. Covers were laid for the following guests: Misses Lillie and Dessie Burns, Mary and Cecelia Nolan, Lottie Payne, Julia Burns, Nora McGill, Beatrice Wayne and Messrs. Will Dandell, Eugene Nolan, John Burns, Ed Evans, Will Hndfield, Lee McGill, Dan Harris, P. C. Butler, Max Pointer and Claude Whayne. Miss Julia Burns played the part of hostess. During the evening vocal and instrumental selections were rendered by Misses Mary E. Nolan, Nora McGill and Lottie Payne and Messrs. Lee McGill, Eugene Nolan and Ed Evans.

RECENT DEATHS.

Joseph H. Gottbrath, one of the most popular young men in Louisville a few years ago, died at the home of his mother, Mrs. Louise Gottbrath, 2010 First street, Tuesday afternoon. The deceased was born in Louisville thirty-two years ago, and after receiving his education in local schools entered one of the Louisville banks as clerk and rose rapidly in his profession. Ill health caused him to seek a warmer climate, and he was employed in a bank at Memphis for a time. Later he removed to California where he remained several years. His battle with ill health was a long and brave one, but when he found he was about to be conquered he returned to die with his fond mother. His funeral took place from St. Louis Bertrand's church Thursday morning. His untimely death is mourned by many friends and relatives.

Thomas Huber, a retired shoe merchant, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. George J. Buck, 2620 Portland avenue, early Monday morning. The deceased was eighty-four years old and was a native of Germany. He came to America when quite a young man, and for more than fifty years conducted a shoe store in Louisville. He was the oldest member of St. Joseph's Benevolent Society and a devout Catholic. His funeral took place from the Church of Our Lady in Portland on Wednesday morning. Two daughters, Mrs. George J. Buck and Mrs. Susan Hayes, survive him.

The funeral of David Jefferson Countin, who died at the City Hospital shortly before midnight Saturday, took place from St. Aloysius church Tuesday morning. Mr. Countin was one of the best known men in the fire department and during the past fifteen years had served with nearly all the companies in the East End. He was a splendid driver and in all his years with the service met with but one accident. Two sisters and one brother, Thomas J. Countin, survive him.

GREAT APPLAUSE

For Performers in "The Mikado" Monday Night.

A crowded house greeted the young ladies and gentlemen who played "The Mikado" at Macauley's Theater Monday night. The performance was excellent from start to finish and the audience generous in its applause, while the performers showed their good taste by refusing to respond to too many encores. John J. Flynn, as Ko-Ko, had the principal comedy role, and sang, acted and danced well. John J. Crotty, as the attendant of the Mikado and of the Lord High Executioner, said not a word, neither did he sing a note, but his nimble capers won applause whenever he appeared. Tello Webb displayed a magnificent baritone voice as the Mikado, while George Barrett's splendid lyric tenor was shown to advantage as Nanki Poo. David Maloney made an excellent Poo Bah and his big bass voice had plenty to do, and did it well. Edward Wolfe as Pish Tush also sang and acted well. Among the ladies Miss Marie Costigan played the leading role of Yum Yum. She made a most convincing Japanese maiden and her beautiful soprano made a hit with the audience. The singing and dancing of Misses Marcella Ford and Imelda Shea, as Petti Sing and Peep Bo, also came in for their share of applause. Miss Bertha Rees made an admirable Katisha, and sang and danced in a manner that made the crowd never tire. Thornton Flynn and Barry Meehan played gracefully their part as pages. The chorus was of superior excellence. The indications are that the box receipts will place a nice sum in the treasury of the Catholic Woman's Club for whom the performance was given.

The picturesque Japanese costumes worn by the chorus were designed by Miss Mollie Collins, the well known modiste of the Stewart Dry Goods Company. The costumes for the young ladies and gentlemen were grooved with an eye toward harmony of color, and the stage picture presented would have elicited applause even if the chorus had failed to utter a sound. Another great audience will greet the young people when they repeat the performance Monday night.

NEW RITUAL

Will Be Carefully Reviewed by Trinity Council's Members.

Trinity Council transacted quite a lot of routine business Monday night and heard pleasing reports from various committees. President James H. Kelly was in the chair and the attendance was large. Two new applications were received and William P. McDonogh was granted a transfer from Satoll Council.

Copies of the new ritual proposed by the Supreme Council's special committee were received and President Kelly referred the copies to the following committee for examination and recommendation: Eugene Cooney, John J. Sullivan, Sr., Andrew Kiefer, Joseph Bell, Thomas Garvey and Dr. P. G. Butler, Jr., Capt. Harry Bindschu is the only member of Trinity on the sick list. The Building Committee reported that work on the new home was well under way.

GRIEF LEADS TO DEATH.

While temporarily deranged Rudolph Yent, a locomotive engineer in the employ of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head Monday night. Grief over the death of his wife, who passed away February 20, is believed to be responsible for his mental derangement. He left a note to his sister-in-law, Miss Julia Coppinger, and confided his three small children to her care. His father and four brothers also survive him. Two of them are Albert and Otto Yent, proprietors of the Manhattan Restaurant, 502 West Jefferson street. The deceased stood high in the esteem of his friends, and while all knew he was despondent over the death of his wife, not even his nearest kin ever heard him threaten self-destruction.

FONTAINE FERRY PARK.

Fontaine Ferry Park had another good week despite the very cool weather during the first few days. The fresh air, beautiful scenery and the excellent vaudeville bill in the pavilion, to say nothing of the numerous other attractions, proved drawing cards. Next week there will be a new and better vaudeville bill, and the "tlicker," "bump-the-bump" and all the other attractions will remain in commission. Admission to the park is free, and "Mine Host" Landenswack remains in charge of the culinary department, so that on a

FIVE DELEGATES.

Will Represent Mackin at the Coming Grand Council.

Mackin Council had a splendid attendance at its meeting Tuesday night. Two new members were received and the class is now large enough to justify an initiation next Tuesday evening. President Burke announced that the election of delegates to the Grand Council would be held on the night of Tuesday, June 23. This will give every member an opportunity of so arranging his affairs as to be present on that night. Mackin Council is entitled to five delegates, and President Burke desires a full attendance at the election. The proper committees reported that Mackin's members were doing their share to promote the interest of Y. M. I. day at the White City. The committee in charge of the operation, "A Mile From Town," reported that it would probably be able to make a complete statement of the necessities attending that venture at the next meeting. Quite an amount of important business was transacted and the proceedings were culminated by several spirited speeches.

PLEASANT TIME

Assured Those Who Attend
Division 3's River Excursion.

Division 3, A. O. H., has completed the details for its moonlight excursion up the Ohio river on the evening of Monday, June 15. The steamer Hiauwatha will carry the Hibernians and their lady friends, leaving the foot of Fourth street at 8 o'clock. Good music and ample refreshments will be aboard the boat. The Hiauwatha will land its passengers back at Fourth street about 11 o'clock. Tickets can be purchased from the secretary of any of the four divisions. On the trip up the river the boat will stop at the Jeffersonville wharf to take on those who wish to go from that city.

The moonlight excursion is intended to promote congeniality among the members and their friends, and not with any desire to make money. For this reason the tickets are being sold at the low price of twenty-five cents. State President George J. Butler and Division President Patrick T. Sullivan are assisting the committee that is making the arrangements. All who take advantage of the excursion will enjoy a pleasant evening.

BOGUS CHECKS

Cause Former Louisville Judge to Be Sent to Prison.

Charles G. Richie, formerly Judge of the Jefferson County Court, and who stood high in Louisville as a civic righteousness exponent a few years ago, has been sentenced to serve eighteen months in San Quentin penitentiary, California, on the charge of passing worthless checks. He pleaded guilty and asked the clemency of the court. Twelve years ago Charley Richie stamped this city and county for Republicanism and reform. He with many other Republicans were elected, but their regime was so bad that one term was all they had. Richie in short time after his term expired left Louisville in disgrace. He had almost been forgotten when the dispatches announcing his sentence to the California prison were received. His friends declare that he is insane, but do not say whether he is insane because he passed the worthless checks or because he pleaded guilty.

RECORD BREAKER TOMORROW.

The Louisville baseball club will again look on for the St. Paul team this afternoon and tomorrow, and with fair weather the record for large attendance is sure to be broken, as the good showup made by the team this far has renewed the fervor of the lovers of the great national game and they are now all rooting with their old time vigor, as Louisville has surely a fighting chance for the pennant. With the exception of one or two faces the team is made up practically of the same material as last year: Pietz, Hughes, Putnam, Sullivan, Quinlan, Woodruff, Stovall and Stanley, but our new leader, Jimmy Burke, seems to have imparted some of his Irish enthusiasm to them, as they are all playing like world beaters. Keep it up and Louisville will once more be a prominent figure on the baseball map.
